Britain Has No Desire Shut Out Soviet Republic

Sir John Simon Proposes Motion That Parliament Approve Policy by Which War Was Averted

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Winston Churchill attacked the Munich agreement in the House of Commons today, declaring "we have sustained a total and unmitigated defeat and France has suffered even more than we have. The utmost the Prime Minister has been able to assure," Mr. Churchill said, "is that the German dictator, instead of snatching his victims from the table, has been content to have them served to him course by course."

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Sir John Simon told the House of Commons today that Great Britain had no desire to shut Soviet Russia out of "any future settlement in Europe."

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, speaking in the third day of debate on the Munich settlement of the Czechoslovak-German problem, urged that Russia should join other powers in guaranteeing the new boundaries of Czechoslovakia.

Proposes Approval Of Policy

He proposed a motion that parliament approve "the policy of His Majesty's government by which war was averted in the recent crisis and support efforts to reach a lasting peace."

Arthur Greenwood promptly introduced a Labor party amendment which read:

"That this house, while profoundly relieved that war has been averted for the time being, cannot approve a policy which has led to the sacrifice of Czechoslovakia under threat of armed force, and to the humiliation of our country and its exposure to grave dangers and realizing the intense desire of all peoples for lasting peace, demands an active support of methods of collective security through the League of Nations and immediate initiative by His Majesty's government of proposals for summoning a world conference to consider the removal of economic and political grievances which imperil peace."

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, a member of the "inner cabinet" which advised Prime Minister Chamberlain during the Sudeten German crisis, affirmed the Prime Minister's desire for a lasting understanding between Germany and dictators.

He denied Mr. Chamberlain sought a "four-power pact among Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy which would disregard other states and impose its will on Europe."

Place Themselves In Premier's Position

Sir John asked the members of the Commons to place themselves in the Prime Minister's position at Munich and decide whether they would have rejected the Munich settlement and "destroyed the last chance of averting war."

Lord Buckmaster Asks Compulsory Military Service

LONDON, Oct. 5.—A private member's motion calling for introduction of compulsory military service in Great Britain was placed before the House of Lords today by Viscount Buckmaster. "In the light of recent events," the motion said, "this house is of the opinion that adoption of some measure of compulsory military service would be in the best interests of this country."

POLAND BACKS MAGYAR BACKS CZECH PEOPLE

WARSAW, Oct. 5.—A foreign office spokesman said last night "The Polish government and nation will not consider the Czech problem settled until Hungary's demands are also satisfied."

This announcement came as Polish troops moved further southward from Teschen, due to Poland by Czechoslovakia in partial settlement of Poland's claims.

"Poland takes the same stand that Premier Mackenzie said," said the foreign office spokesman. "He based on an 'integral solution' of the Czechoslovak minorities question. Hungarian demands must also be settled."

An amendment went into the third day of the debate, there was increasing speculation as to whether the government would accept the Prime Minister's new mandate for the Prime Minister Chamberlain in his last trip to bring about an agreement on the continent of Europe.

Changed Mind

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Reports were current in parliamentary circles today that the House of Commons would not pass the Munich agreement paving the way for German domination of Europe and possible ruin of the democratic states.

"We have sustained a total, unmitigated defeat, and France has suffered even more than we have," Mr. Churchill declared.

The only difference between Churchill and the German dictator, Hitler, was that the German dictator, instead of snatching his victims from the table, has been content to have them served to him course by course."

Will Regret Bargain

Churchill declared that he would regret the bargain they forced on the Czechs at Munich, Mr. Churchill continued.

"I fear we shall find we have done ourselves the harm of having compromised the safety and independence of Britain and France," he said.

Russians Rap French Action Munich Pact

MOSCOW, Oct. 5.—The French language newspaper Le Journal de Moscou, which habitually reprints news of the Soviet foreign office, gave expression today to what was regarded in diplomatic circles as Russia's farewell to her ally, France.

"France no longer has an ally in Europe except Britain," the paper said.

This was accepted as meaning Soviet Russia no longer regarded France as an ally in the Franco-Soviet military assistance pact in evidence agreement.

Word Unreliable

"International public opinion now says what is the value of France's word—the value of her pledges to the U.S.S.R. and of the Franco-Soviet pact," the newspaper stated, in a discussion of the four-power Munich settlement of Sept. 30 in which Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy agreed to the partition of Czechoslovakia.

Neither Czechoslovakia nor Russia, an ally of Czechoslovakia, that she was pledged to aid her against an aggressor provided France would not do so, was represented in the Munich conference.

The Inevitable Loan

The Czech Government wants to borrow $150,000,000 of British money with which to build railways and roads, and otherwise make an economic unit out of what is left—or to be left—of the republic. It will get a third of the amount at once, the balance in instalments. There is nothing strange in this; history is only repeating. Almost any international settlement anywhere usually results in some party wanting to borrow money in London—and getting it. In this case the loan may do something to avert the feeling of isolation Britain and it is obviously needs offering. It will set the dispossessed exiles from Sudetenland at work and give them more money than their losses to think about. What they should, but won't, think about is how they are going to pay back the money.

Another result is worth noting. The loan will be another pledge on the part of Britain to protect the borrower against destruction; as the foreign loans made to old Turkey saved it from being wiped out of existence for a half century. Perhaps the Czechs have that also in mind. The dollars they owe will be used in assuring them of British help if they need it.

September

Along with better crops, the boom in northern trade, the general improvement in conditions, and the general improvement in employment, it is not to be overlooked that the old-time traditional Alberta September came back in 1938—after an absence of some years. To late-comers, who have known the month only as one of bad weather and worse roads, the last four weeks of glorious weather, which have seemed to be a break in the natural order of things in this part of the world. But to those of longer residence this is only the resumption of what used to be the regular September program. September in earlier years was one of the most pleasant months of the year, just such a month as it has been this year.

Whether this is proof that the weather moves in cycles, or whether sun spots are accountable for it, the fact is unquestionable that September in recent years has been behaving badly, altogether out of form, and in ways all the more disappointing because of the contrast with what used to be its normal conduct. Whatever was to blame, here's hoping the old-time September has come back as a regular feature on the calendar for the future.

Peace and Conscription

It is notable that while Briton cheer their escape from war and hope the Munich agreement may be the prelude to a new and better order of things in Europe, alike the author of the agreement and his parliamentary critics agree the necessity of conscription. Now it is the London papers call for more speed in construction and the Times is demanding a policy of conscription. All hope that the peace declaration signed by Herr Hitler and Mr. Chamberlain is propitious, but no one quite believes it. The Cromwell motto is still quoted as being appropriate.

A new situation is created by Britain's participation in the joint guarantee to be given to the remnant of Czechoslovakia. Hitherto Britain has had no direct commitments on the continent beyond its pledge to assist France should the latter be attacked. Now it is committed to the defence of a country lying in the middle of the continent, a country that is particularly likely to need defence, and one in which Britain cannot land an army without traversing the territory of some other state.

That obviously involves a responsibility of a new and different and serious character. If, as Mr. Baldwin said, Britain's frontier has been the Rhine, it is now the Carpathian mountains. And that is a frontier exceeding difficult to defend, for reasons of geography. That is the new situation as it is beginning to dawn upon the British parliament and public. Britain has now become a continental power.

Recognition of this new obligation is what is behind the demand for speedier armament, a bigger armament program, and a readjustment of technique. Defence measures sufficient for Britain would not be sufficient for Czechoslovakia.

Very clearly, however strong the hope for permanent peace, there is little confidence that it has been secured. Peace and conscription are not cognate ideas.

Canada Expects, Etc.

Canada is a great producer of fish, of quality and in quantity. Plane loads of whitefish brought from northern Alberta lakes to supply the Chicago market and cargoes of sea-fish from Prince Rupert passing through the city daily to points as far east as New York supply local evidence on the score of quality. As to quantity, one year in the late twenties the total production ran beyond $55,000,000—with no note taken of course of the catches made by sportsmen for private consumption. Then came the depression, prices slumped and have never climbed back to the level of a decade ago.

As some compensation for the lower prices, the harvests have been larger than usual on both eastern and western coasts in recent years, but this confronted the fishermen with the problem of markets for the increased supply. And with "national economy" policies rampant, the markets abroad have not expanded in response to the offer of ample supplies at the reduced price. Hence the industry is in a bad way. Fish Week, during which Canadian consumers are being urged to loosen their belts and make away with the surplus.

Not all Canadians like fish—believe it or not. There is a fairly large minority who give their preference to pork chops and beefsteaks. To these Fish Week may not mean much. They are not likely to eat fish just because the Minister of Fisheries wants them to, and perhaps they will not do it even to help out the fisherfolk.

But to the great majority, to whom fish is a welcome item on the menu, the opportunity is offered to gratify the palate and at the same time assist one of the important factors in the Dominion's economic life. To these urging may be unnecessary. Still, if they this week put the dietetic emphasis on fish they will do their bit in a nation-wide effort to bring better times to a fairly large class of Canadians who are poor of their lives wear a hard won and by no means luxurious living on the deep.

IN THE TOPS OF THE TREES

As a mother sleeps with an ear open for her baby's cry as a young woman hears herself being seduced, let us listen to the voice of the Lord's whispering, as a century peeps into the distance as he peeps his part, on every Christian, as he seeks the signs of the coming of the Kingdom.

David was told to listen for the sound of a king for marching in the tops of the mulberry trees, as a signal to smite the Philistines. Today to the spiritually keen-eyed, the mulberry trees are full of summing sounds. Souls are in the air.

"Each breath that sweeps the ocean brings tidings from afar, of nations that are near."

Prepared for Zion's work.

Quicken our perceptions, dear Lord, that we may recognize all the signs of this presence. May we not be heed sleeping while these last uses of us.

Read 11 Samuel 3:22-25.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

With the whole world as a place hovering on the edge of war, it now seems as if peace in Europe may be a thing of the past. In Spain and China. The League of Nations has recommended "sanctions" against Japan. With munition supplies reduced to what may be able to buy from nations outside the League, Japan's striking power is lessened at a time when she needs renewed force if she is to over-run northern China.

OUTLOOK FOR PEACE IN SPAIN

Loyalist Spain, with her own armies trained, had announced her intention to demand all foreign volunteers from her territory, and fight with her own unaided man-power, when, alarmed at the near possibility of war at his own front door, Mussolini ordered the withdrawal of his forces from Franco's aid.

In the moral aspect as well as in the military, Franco has suffered a set-back of late by the veering of Catholic opinion away from him. It has followed the publication of Georges Bernanos' "Les Grands Cimetieres sous la Lune," telling of what had happened in the once happy Isle of Majorca. Written by an ardent Catholic and former Royalist, whose previous novel had been applauded by the Catholic press as a model of what a Catholic could do in the world, it has written, Bernanos' story of the massacre of over 3,000 unoffending Majorcans without protest from the ecclesiastical authorities, and his story of the defence to the death of Catholic Sisters and their wounded charges by so-called "Reds," has had powerful effect.

"Black Priests," the Dominican order in England, together with prominent Catholics in France and England, have attacked the theory of "only war" in Spain. The Spanish press of the Catholic Union of International Studies—Senior Alfred Mendizabal, late secretary of the League of Nations, and his story of Ordoñez—added his weight to their protests in his recently published "Martyrdom of Spain." Only Catholicism has been discredited and authority could effect such a change in ecclesiastical opinion.

Exaggerated or untruthful stories of Russian aid and Loyalist atrocities have been circulated as Fascist war propaganda. The effect of this changed attitude of the Catholic authorities towards Loyalists and Rebels, the Spanish civil war, is bound to make for peace.

What a blessed thing for the next generation if an era of peace and progress can now be ushered in after generations of hate and preparedness for war.

And now to lighter topics.

The record that all the Thespians of Tarascon never did when Alphonse Duval laid down his pen. Two of them appeared the other day in a libel action in the Middlesex Sheriff's Court in England. Major Leonard Hande, author of "Hutter's Men," was suing.

"AFTER YOU, MY DEAR ALPHONSE" Hande, a publisher of the latter had written by way of criticism in the Journal of the Bombay National History Society.

Both men are prominent big game hunters. When the judge announced a verdict in favor of the plaintiff with $15,000 damages, the major and his publisher were both taken aback. Their eyes met. Both men stepped across the court-room floor towards each other, like a couple of wrestling meeting in the middle of the ring in the "ring" of the law. They could step between them, the two men had embraced.

The planter, "Mr. Lud," this is all a mistake. In criticizing the Major's book I had no intention of aspersing his ability as a big game hunter. I meant only to say that I had been staking a certain thing. I will see that an 'amende honorable' is made in the next edition of the Journal.

Then it was the Major's turn to speak. "Would your Lordship be so very kind," he asked, "to excuse this answer? What would I do with all this? Besides, I don't think I'd ever dare to send my face again in Mysore."

So the verdict was stricken out by consent and the two hunters left the court better friends than ever.

As Kipling once wrote of two other renowned adventurers in India:

"For there is neither bond nor free.

"And there is neither lord nor man."

When two strong men come face to face, Though they come from the ends of the earth."

How greatly is it to be desired that such a consummation may follow the fading of each by the representatives of the European powers. Then peace in Spain and China can be made to follow.

Old Country Letter

By J. E. NORCROSS

LONDON, Eng.—(By Mail)—One cannot help thinking that it would be rather a good thing if the King and Queen could visit the United States next year. It might do a great deal to promote cordial relations between Great Britain and the United States and thus repeal in some degree the diplomatic success attaching to their brief sojourn in France or their brief sojourn in India.

It would, of course, be a sort of added attraction to the trip. The King and Queen. Unfortunately, however, there is little prospect of the latter in 1939. There seems to be no idea that should the King go availing in the King of olden times, India should have priority. The thing, however, is certain. It is quite impossible to make plans as far ahead as would be necessary for any extended absence from this country until international conditions become more stable.

Our Majesties are reported to be enjoying their holiday at Balmoral, which will be broken only when they go to Glasgow for the launching of the Queen Elizabeth.

On the last Sunday in August the King unveiled a memorial to his father in law, the late King George V. The memorial was unveiled by the King and Queen.

"I desire to place this memorial in this church to the glory of God and in memory of my dear father, King George V," the King said, as he touched a cord that drew the well said.

His Majesty, in Highland dress, with a Balmoral tartan, unveiled a memorial which had bowed before the Queen and then returned to his place beside the memorial and the two Princesses.

Your Health

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

Heat may be used with very good results as a treatment in a variety of conditions attended by muscular soreness and stiffness. Furthermore, the heat treatment may be equally effective whether the muscle is sore because of a chronic tension or because of an injury as seen in sprains.

Heat will provide relief from muscular soreness regardless of whether a disease or an injury caused by heat of the muscle is the cause of the circulation of blood through the damaged part.

Heating must depend primarily upon getting a good flow of blood through the affected area and this flow will then bring the materials needed for repair. At the same time, the increased blood supply will help to wash away the waste products which have accumulated.

Although we can not do anything which will directly "relax" the injured muscle, we can bring to the blood which will do the real healing. One of the best ways to encourage a blood tension is by giving a series of things to apply some form of heat. The heat will cause the blood vessels to flow larger, which will increase the circulation of blood through the damaged part.

Heat is also of benefit because it causes the contracted muscles to relax, thus lessening muscular tension and giving a more complete rest of the part which will encourage the faster healing.

When these physiotherapy treatments are not conveniently attended, then the patient may use the hot bath, the hot water bottle, or hot applications. One of the simplest of all heat treatments consists of folding a bath towel, wringing it out of water as hot as may be borne by the skin, and then applying this over the painful part. The hot towel should be changed with a dry one every few minutes and may be left in place for 2 or 3 minutes, when a fresh wet towel is substituted for it.

When you are bothered by any type of muscular aches, try using heat and see for yourself how much you will benefit. There is little need to suffer from these minor aches and pains of the muscles when it is so easy to get relief by this simple home treatment.

Friendly Relations

Editor, Bulletin: I am starting a movement in Norristown, Pennsylvania, to have a day set aside for the promotion of friendly relations and good neighborly policies between the British Empire and the United States. My plan is to set a day around October 23, which is the day of the birth of the late King George V. I am starting a movement in Norristown, Pennsylvania, to have a day set aside for the promotion of friendly relations and good neighborly policies between the British Empire and the United States.

Sixty years ago today (Oct. 5, 1878) John Douglas Sutherland Campbell, Marquis of Lorne, was appointed governor-general, not because he was himself but because he had married Princess Louise, the third child of Queen Victoria. Her Majesty had been unable to attain her desire that one of her sons should represent her in Canada, and so as a substitute, sent her daughter.

She was not until 10 years after Queen Victoria's death that, in 1911, her youngest son, Arthur, Duke of Connaught, came over to Ottawa.

The Marquess of Lorne was to have the honor of opening the royal ball of his spouse (they had been married a little over seven years) at the Empress Hotel in March 1879.

He: My intellect is my fortune. She: As well, poverty is a crime.

Lady (turning around): "Does the loveliest of his mother but you?"

She: "I have been thinking of you, but I did until I took it off."

"Can your wife keep a secret?" "Blatant! We were engaged for a long time, but I did not tell the slightest of it!"

FISH DO NOT ALL BREATHE BY GILLS

There are three kind of fish called "lung-fishes" because they have large air-bladders connected with their mouths which are used for breathing. They live in muddy swamps, and in the dry season when these swamps go dry, they "hibernate" inside a capsule of dried mud till the rains come again. There is a theory that frogs and other amphibians developed from these lung-fishes.

Answer: A little more than 20 years. In the United States, the game did not become popular until 1926, but European had played a form of Contract for years. The White Club of New York, as early as 1915, considered codifying the game, but decided the time was not ripe.

There is a strong tendency to think that the Yankees are the only team in the world that can win the World Series. This is a mistake. The Yankees are a great team, but they are not the only team that can win the World Series. There are many other teams that are capable of winning the World Series, and the Yankees are not the only team that can win the World Series.

Rumors, Hunches Excite Windy City

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—This city was a ball-mad hive of hustle and bustle, rumors and hunches today as thousands of excited fans poured toward Wrigley Field awaiting the first game of the series. News, however, and merchant price all tallied at once about the same subject—baseball. Newspapers rushed edition after edition to the streets, the front pages dominated by series stories while radios blared last minute flashes and gossip to the public in taverns, restaurants, barber shops and stores.

Rumors swept through the excited crowds like prairie fires before a high wind. One of these was that Hartnett might cross everyone up and start the great Dizzy Dean with his $185,000 sore arm in a bold, dramatic attempt to upset the mighty Yankee sluggers and get the all-important first game. Last night Hartnett had officially announced that big Bill Lee would pitch the opener for the Cubs, Ruffing being the Yankee nominee.

The Hartnett Riffles remain heavily favored to keep the series. A poll of the press box experts revealed that more than two-thirds of them figured the Yanks would win in not more than six games. Only a scant few favored the Cubs to win and they admitted they were only reason for doing so was just a hunch.

Neither manager would make any prediction as to the outcome of the series. McCarthy, Cubs' manager, said he was just as hot as they were when they swept the Pirates out of the championship and still will be blazing throughout the series.

All Hartnett would say was: "I'll never throw here in a ball."

"I feel sorry for my old pal, Gabby, but I'm gonna give it to him," McCarthy said.

Bucky Harris, of Washington, one of the smartest men in baseball, watched the Cubs work out and spoke of them in glowing terms. His brothers were about convinced he picked Cubs when Yankees arrived on the field. "And there," he said, "you see a ball player."

Following a ball game, the series met a sad and far from happy end.
